Teaching Is Their Way of Life

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Borton

We, the students of USHS, wish to dedicate the 1971 Indian Village Annual to Mr. and Mrs. John L. Borton who have taught for 35 and 17 years respectively. Through the years Mr. Borton has served USHS by teaching agricultural courses and Mrs. Borton, business courses.

Mrs. Borton feels that, for her, teaching is a way of life. Her father, mother and sisters were teachers. After her initial teaching years, she married a teacher and their two daughters majored in teaching. When teachers were needed, Mrs. Borton returned to teaching. She looks upon teaching as an always challenging, sometimes frustrating, but more often rewarding service. She feels that the teacher who helps his students individually is the one who finds genuine satisfaction in his work.

Mr. Borton's interest in youth and in agriculture caused him to select vocational agriculture as a teaching field. The challenge lies in the preparation of high school students and young farmers for establishment in farming or agri-business as well as training them to live together more richly and satisfyingly in a rural society. Mr. Borton finds also that working with the adult farmer groups to improve their vocational efficiency is especially rewarding.

"He profits most who serves best"

Mr. Frederick Fleeman

For 43 years Mr. Frederick Fleeman taught math and chemistry courses at USHS. During that time he had over 4800 students. Many students and their parents will always remember Mr. Fleeman as their teacher and educator.

Mr. Fleeman's philosophy of teaching written by him many years ago: "I think I chose one of the most important tasks in our country, that being the devoting of my life to an ideal — teaching. I taught to help the present welfare of America because Education is one of the greatest defenses against the threats to our free country. Therefore, the future of each one of my students in my classes depended on how well I did my teaching. In my classes I tried to plant and then I watched grow the knowledge of my fields. In the hearts of my students, I tried to inspire the standards of public service by lifting them to new and higher levels by giving them the principles that Americans firmly believe in. My greatest goal was to inspire love of home and country, and my greatest reward was watching students mature."

Upper Sandusky Senior High

yesterday

we entered USHS as freshmen
we tried, failed, and tried again we laughed, learned, hoped and cried tears of sadness, tears of joy

those were the days, my friend we thought they'd never end

today

all the yesterdays fuse into memories of growing and searching upon reaching the top
we feel a new freedom but realize that the answers to our searching are young and yet to be developed a million tomorrows shall all pass away

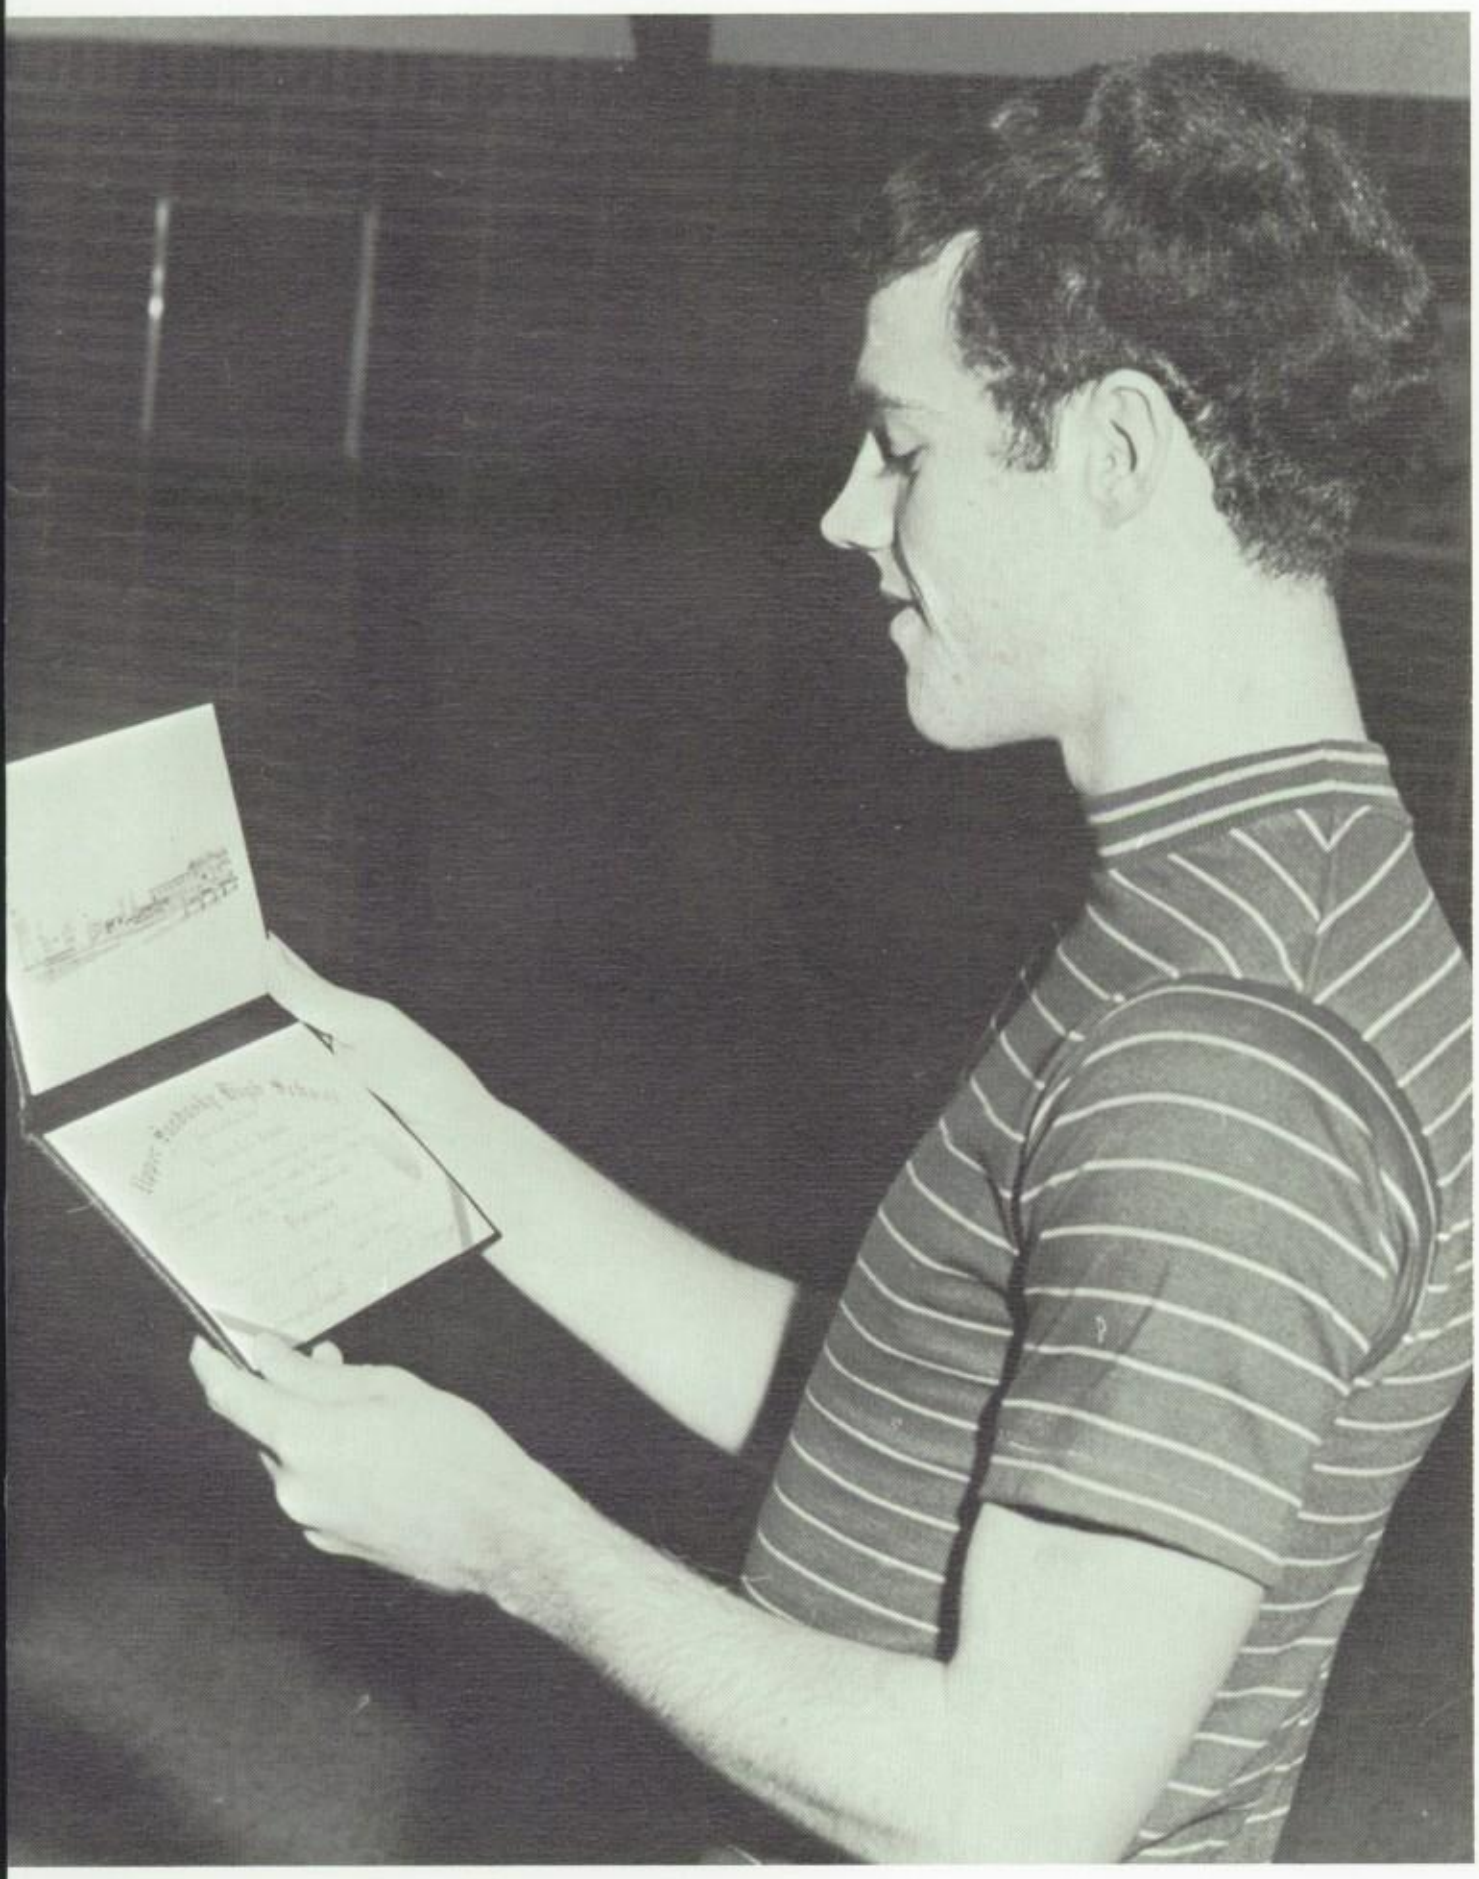
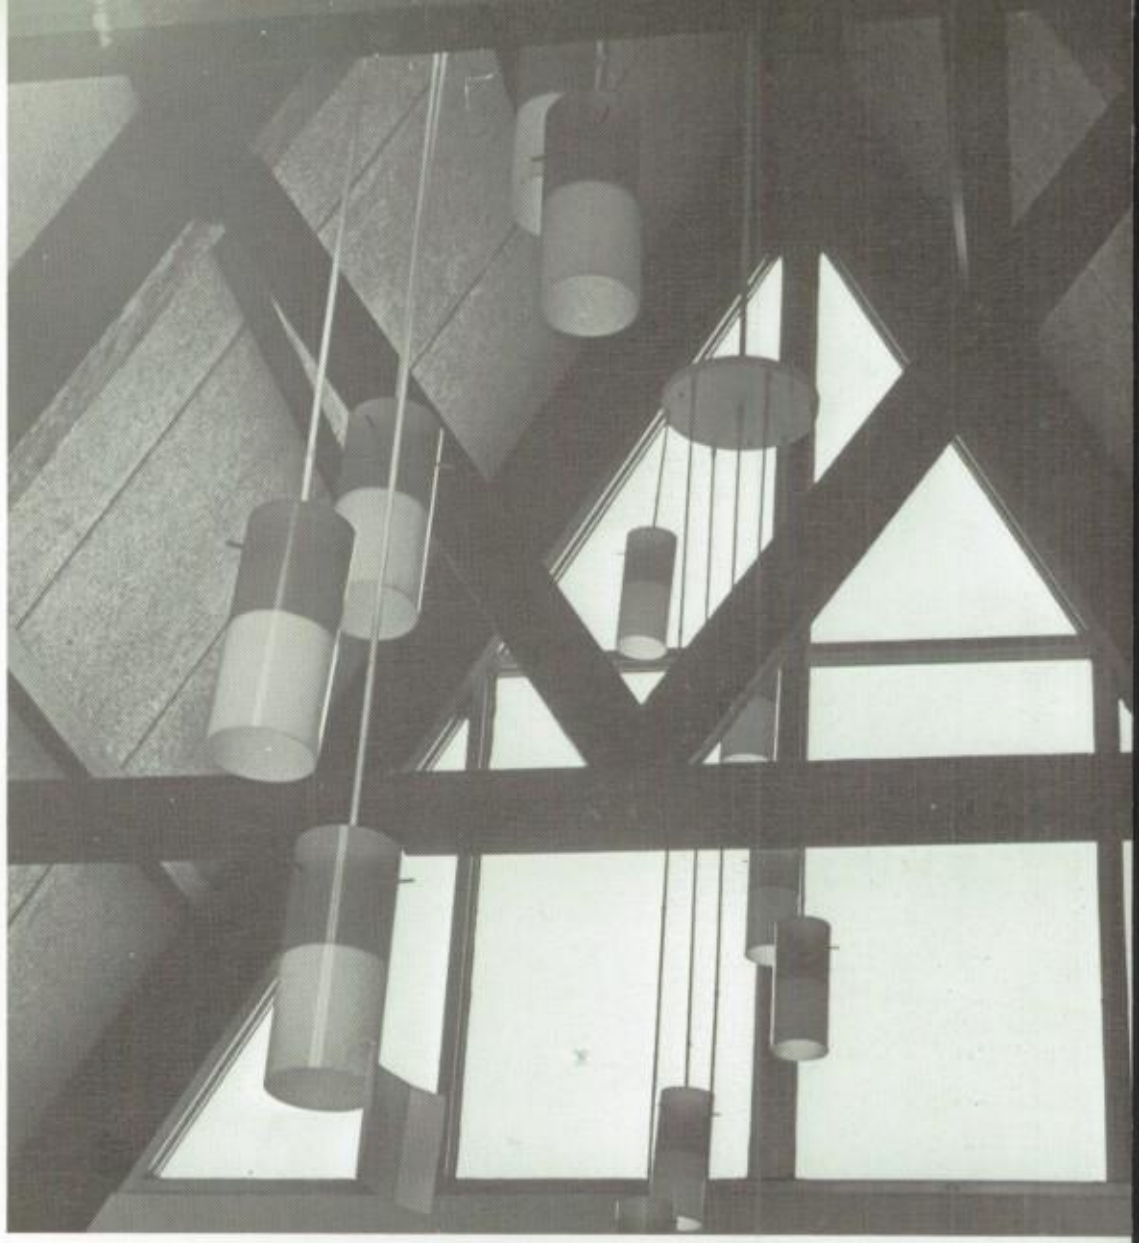
'ere I forget all the joy that is mine today





tomorrow

each person begins the journey of life
some paths will cross many will not but distance apart has no meaning our pasts are bonded together
by common memories

we've only just begun to live sharing horizons that are new to us working together day by day

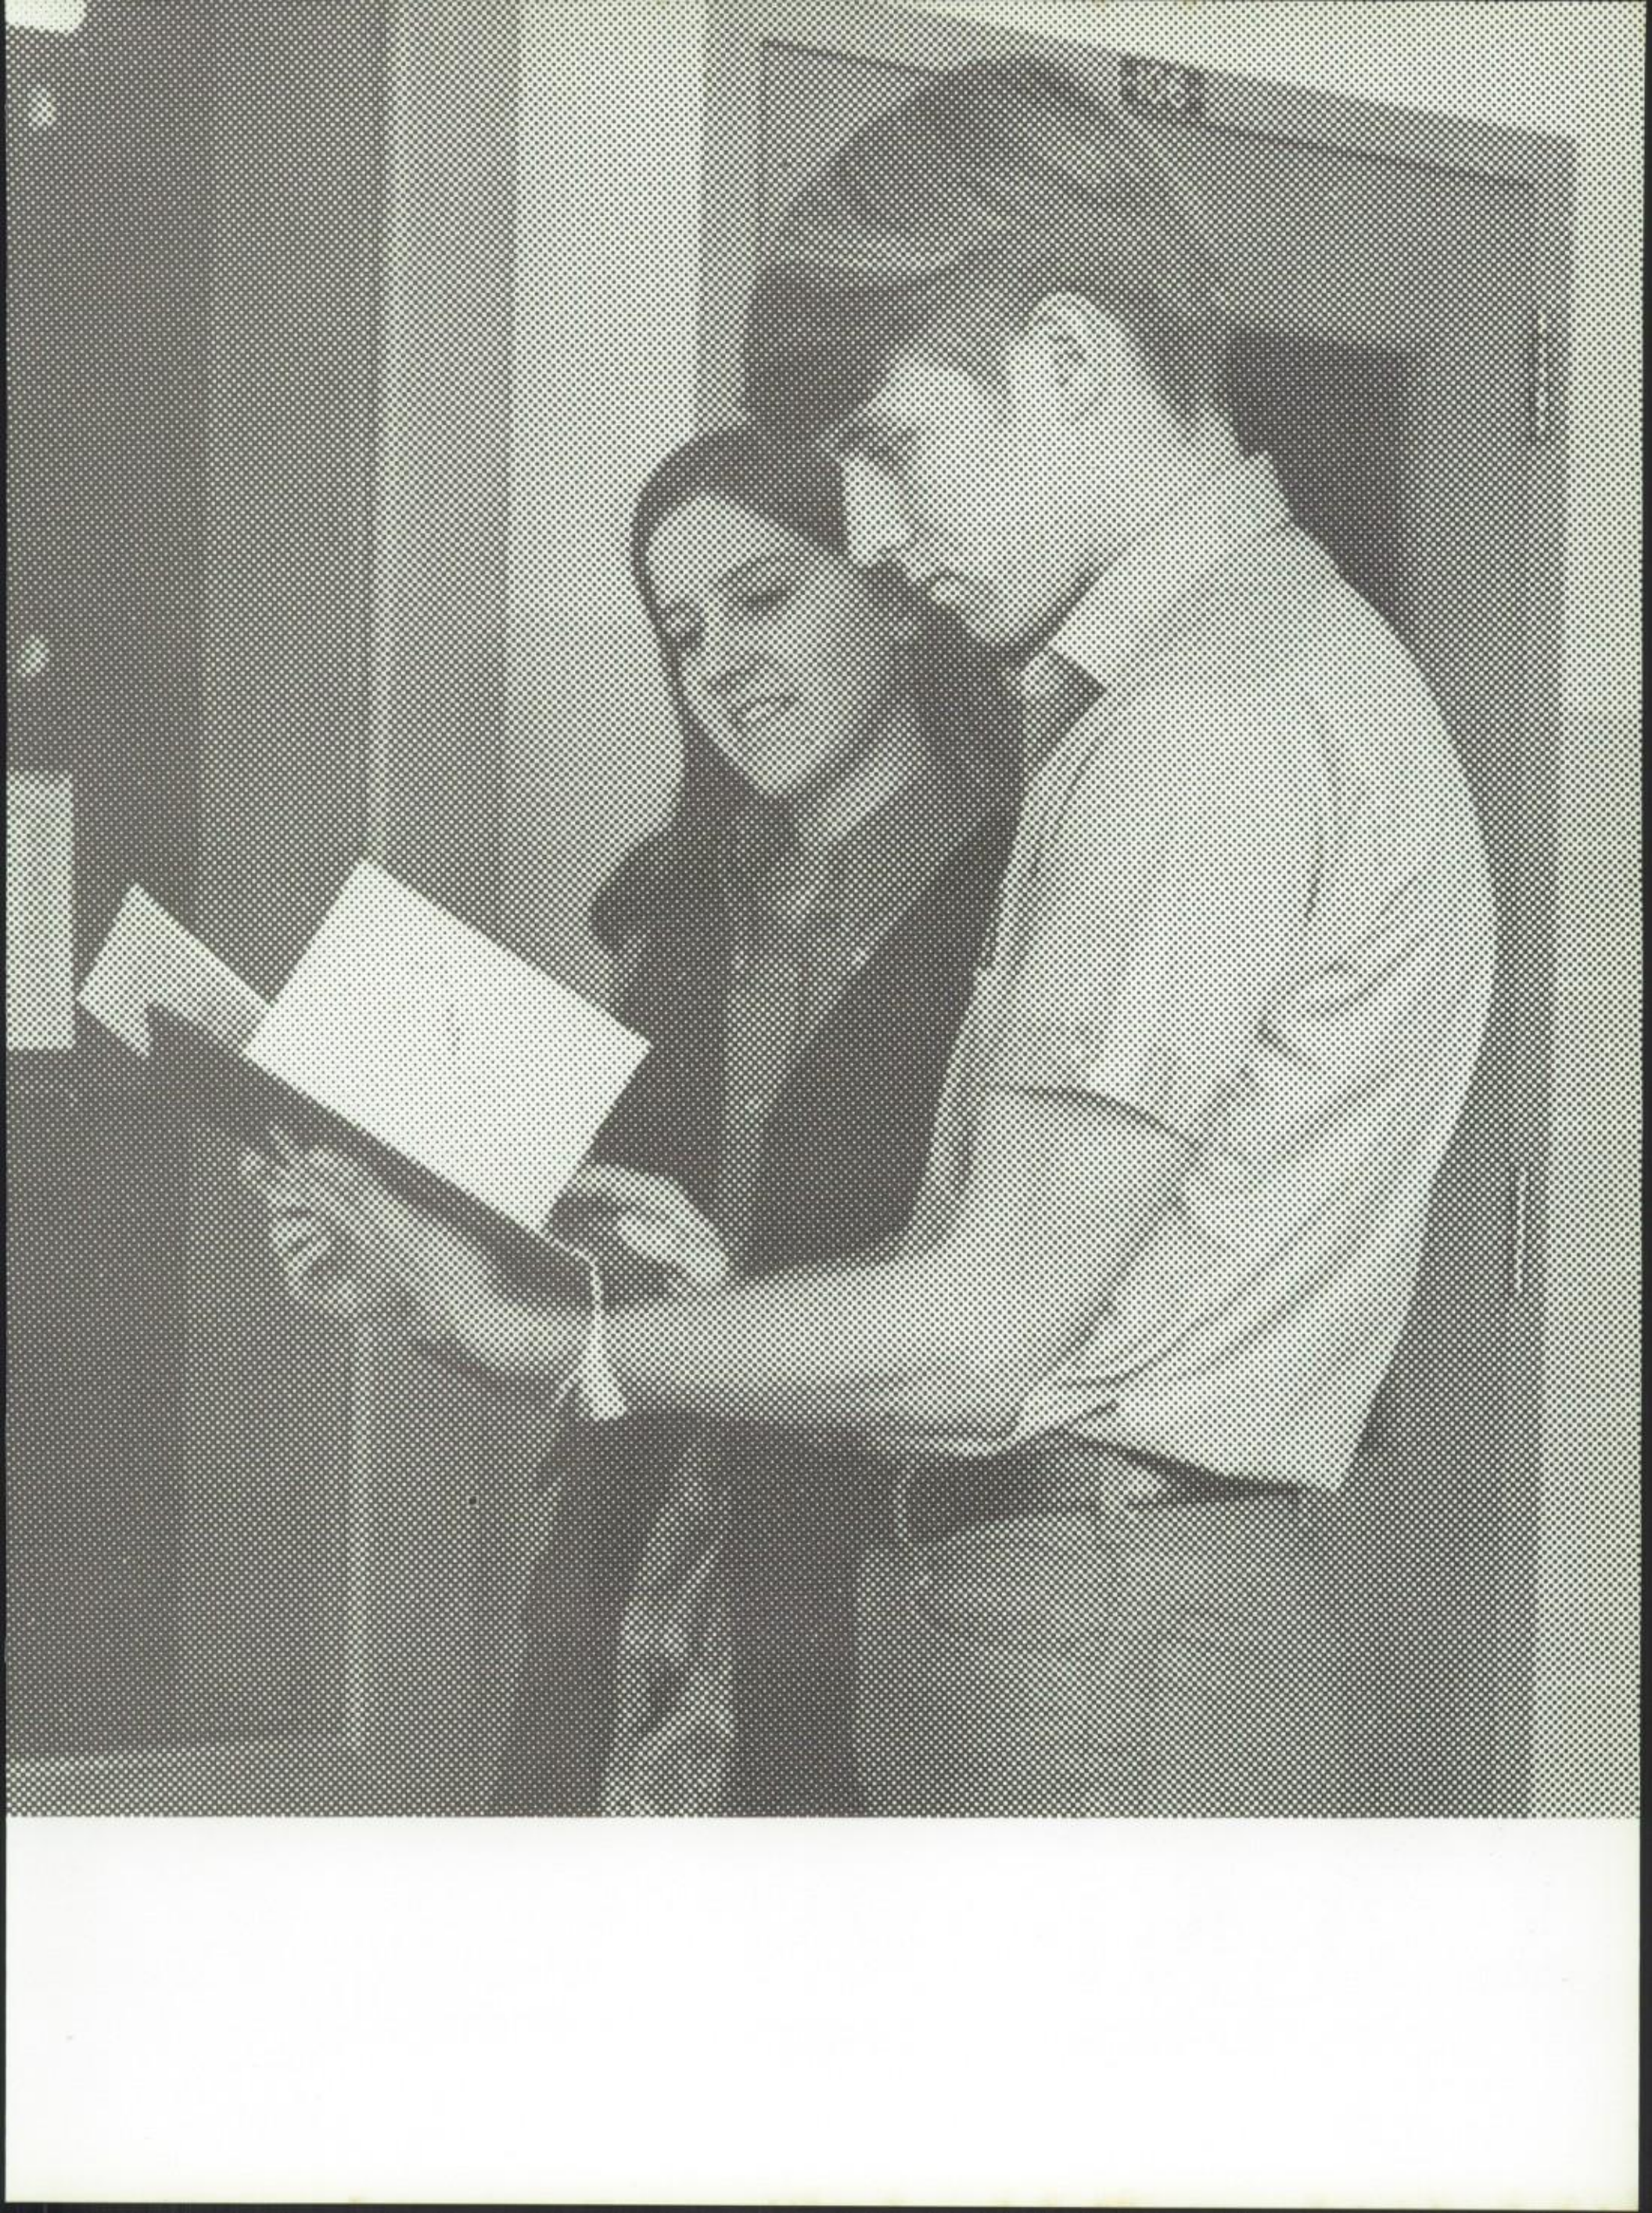
SENIORS



Today We Follow; Tomorrow We Lead

Well, we finally made it! It seemed those four years were the longest part of our lives, but actually now they seem the shortest. Remember our first day as freshman? We had the frustration of finding our classes, but at the same time we saw the doors of opportunity opening to us. Then before we knew it, we were sophomores. Our activities broadened — taking part in the Hi-Y, Hi-Teens Christmas Dance, singing and serving for the prom, trying out for the musical "High Button Shoes" and reaching that age of sixteen entitling us to our driving permits. Soon we were ordering and purchasing our class rings. Our dramatic abilities were presented in our junior class play, "The Spiral Staircase." Working in the concession stands Friday nights and cleaning the field the morning after made possible our prom. Remember the panic as we worked down to the last minute? But we made it and our theme of "Camelot" was made the best ever. Senior pictures, ordering announcements, measurements for caps and gowns made us realize we were at the top. As we look back today, those days of yesterday started the mold for our future as teachers, nurses, farmers, engineers and the many other numerous professions.

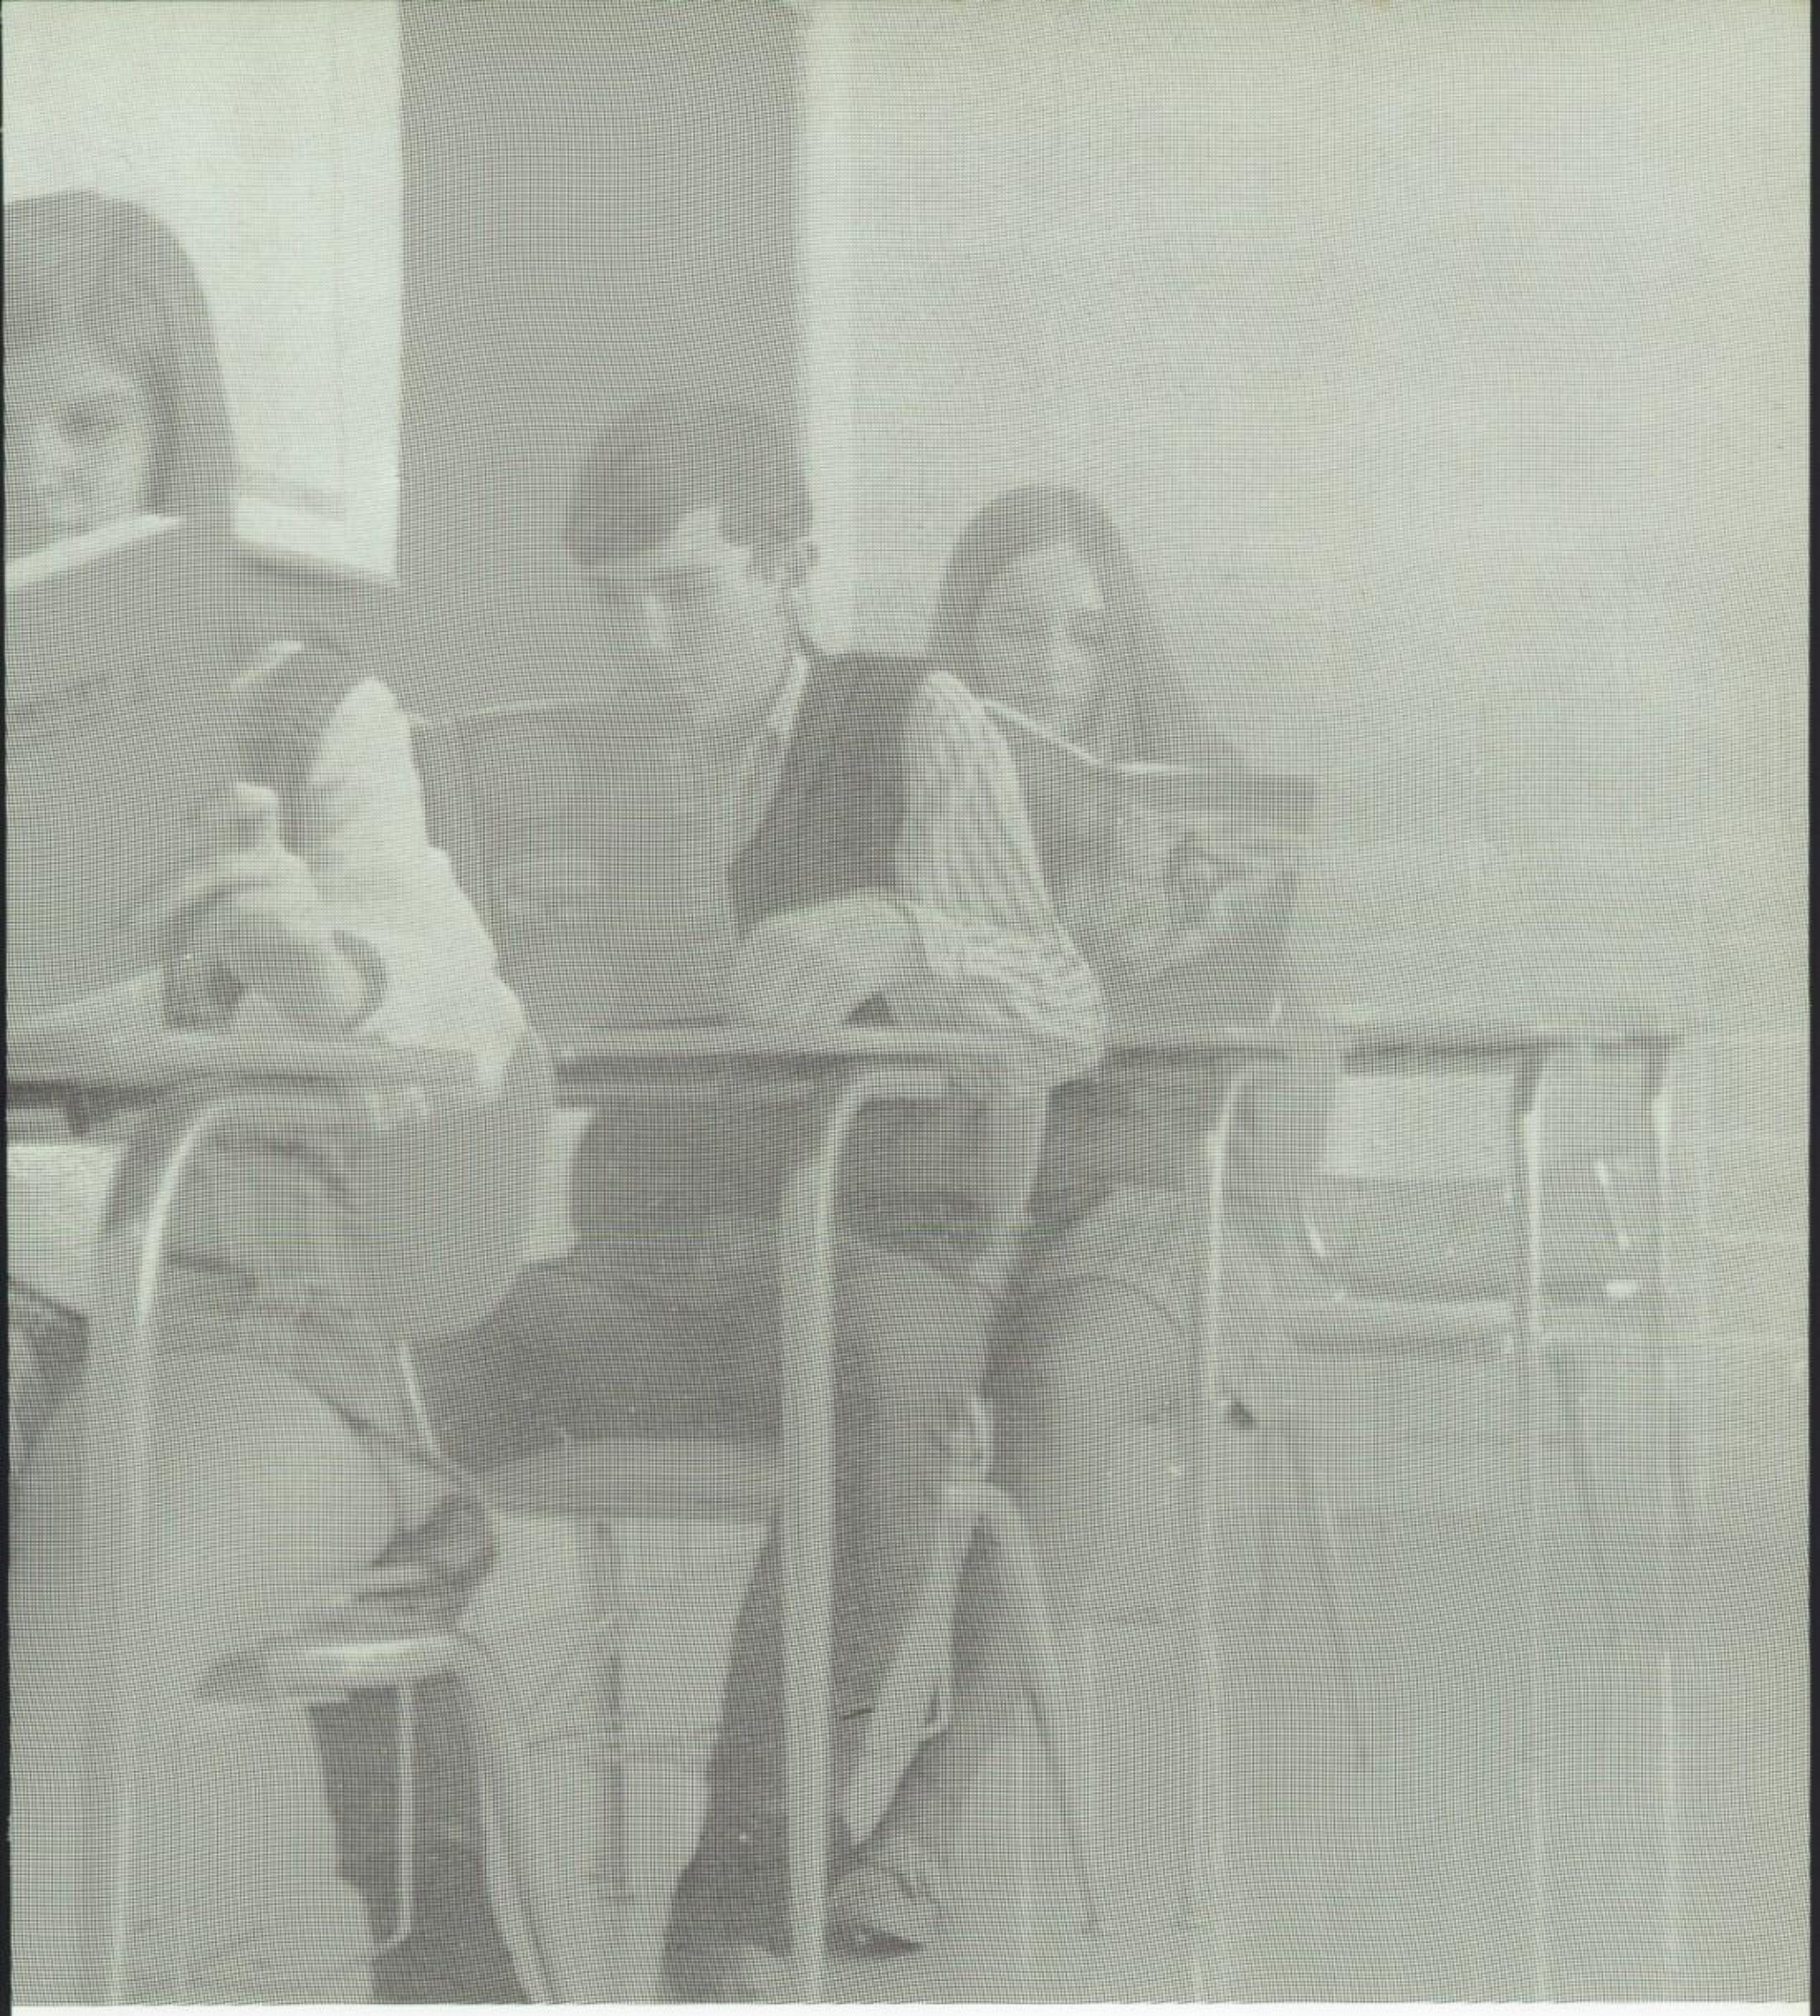
CLASSES



Juniors — Ready to Take Over

John Gagnon, Jim Wolf, Tom Hoover and Maria Rodriquez were the officers as the junior class prepared themselves for becoming next year's ruling seniors. In the fall the juniors voted on and received their class rings which they wear with pride. The class play, "Get Witch Quick", which gave this class their first chance to show their dramatic abilities, was presented in February. Following tradition the juniors again sponsored the Junior-Senior Prom and in the spring the six delegates to Girl's and Boy's state were chosen. Throughout the year juniors prepared for college by taking the ACT, PSAT, SAT and National Merit Scholarship tests. Although the juniors were involved in many extracurricular activities, they managed to maintain high scholastic averages.

1972 Class Officers: (STANDING): Treasurer, Maria Rodriquez; (SEATED): Vice-President, Jim Wolf; President, John Gagnon; Secretary, Tom Hoover.

Challenges and Achievements Fill Soph Year

The executive posts of the class of '73 were filled by Pam Flowers, Marcy Wall, Jan Wilson, and Cheryl Miller. The achievement of becoming sophomores gave the members of this class much more responsibility. This was the first year that these students were allowed to join many of the clubs which are open only to sophomores, juniors and seniors. Each sophomore eagerly awaited the time when he could obtain his driver's license and a little more freedom. More difficult subjects faced the students as they realized that they would soon be only a step from the top.

Frosh Find New Horizons

The 1974 Freshman class entered USHS last September and soon became accustomed to the high school routine. In student government the class was represented by Tim Berg, Debbie Orians, Debbie Morrison and Pam Hershner. Although freshmen aren't allowed to join some of the clubs, there are still many other clubs and activities which keep them busy. This year's freshmen football team had a fine winning season.

Senior Class Presents
SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY

Have you ever wondered, while walking through an old graveyard, about the people who lie there? This year's senior class play answered that question about one graveyard. In SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY, by Edgar Lee Masters, the audience was transported via free verse poems and musical interludes to the town of Spoon River. Its story is told frankly and freely by the former residents of the town who now reside in the town's graveyard. The hopes, frustrations, failures, and truth about the town's citizens, both the rich and the poor, are revealed with utter and, sometimes, embarrassing candor by the citizens themselves from the vantage point of the grave.

The play was directed by Mr. Michael Stewart. Terri Stansbery was the Student Director.

"I refused to be drawn into a divorce
By the scheme of a husband who had merely grown tired
Of his marital vow and duty."

"If you in the village think that my work was a good one,
Who closed the saloons and stopped all playing at cards, . . . "

"What do you see now?
My father and mother and sisters."

"And my rooster goes cock-a-doodle-doo," sings Terri Stansbery while singers Cheri Rhodes, Georgia Stephan and Kyle Bowman look on.

"Get Witch Quick"
Presented by Junior Class

(KNEELING): Pam Wells, Kathie Stumpp, Patty Bond, Jane Brynes, Terry Michaels, Lori Rhodes, Sue Stein, Debbie Wood, Lou Newberger. (STANDING CENTER): Jeannette Santschi, Doug Barth. (STANDING REAR): Bonnie Sammet, Diane Cattran, Joe Hall, John Helge, Melanie Rall, Maria Rodriquez, Dennis Clark, Les Hewitt, Kevin Wines.

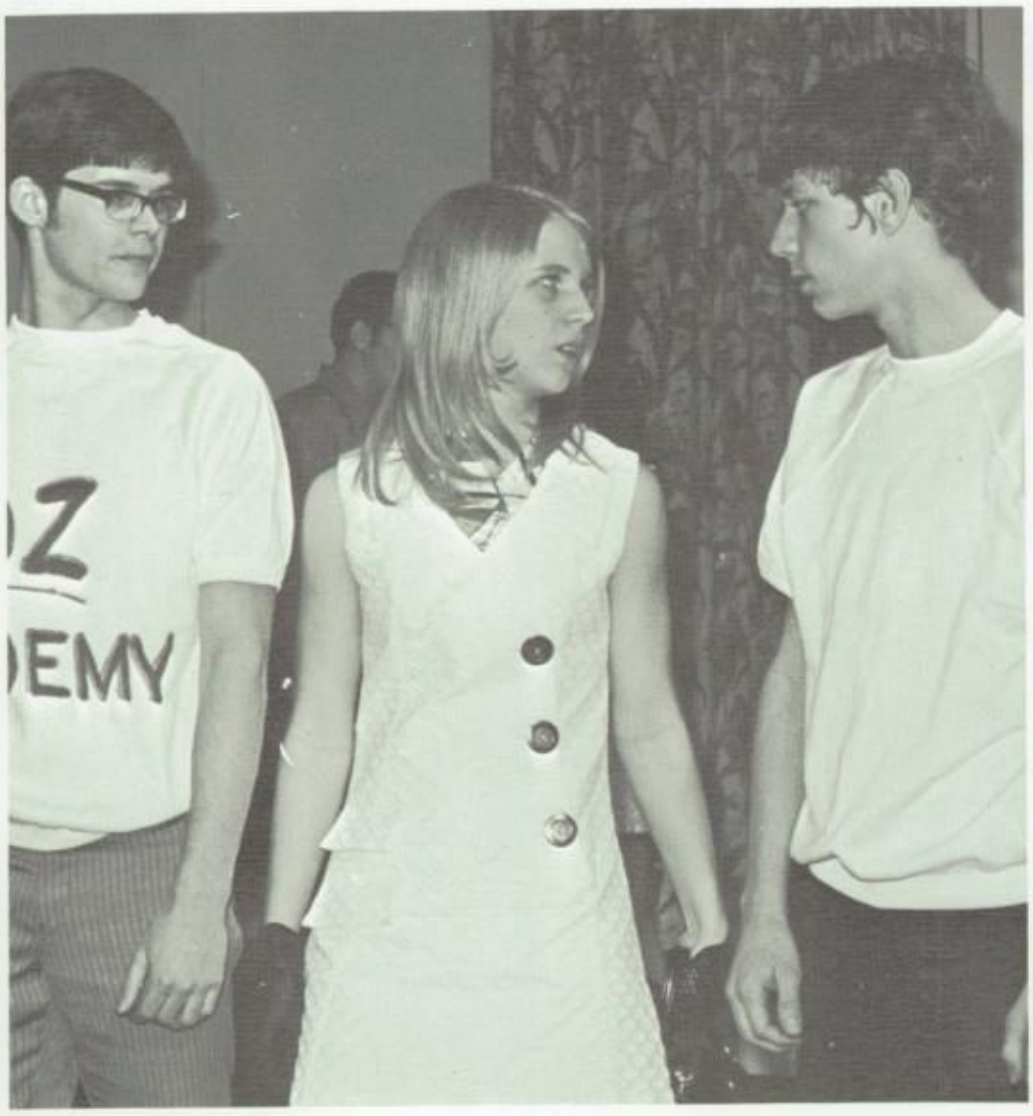
Under the direction of Mr. Allen Walton and Miss Jane Blackburn, student director, the Junior Class presented "Get Witch Quick" on February 18th and 20th. The play was a three act farce poking fun at witchcraft.

Basically the story took place in Salem, Massachusetts, at an all girls' school for witches. During the play this school had to hire a new English teacher, and this not only was a 'normal' but also a man. A jealous student puts a spell on the smartest girl in the class and causes her to fall in love with the English teacher. The story was further complicated by the fact that a government agent comes to hire a staff witch for the White House. The play ends happily with a marriage and a cabinet post. The cast of twenty learned a lot from this production both about matters on the stage and about working together off the stage.

Is it about time for another on stage, off stage magic trick?

"Oh my, this isn't likely to happen in Washington!"

"Balms, . . . Curses, . . . Exorcisms."



"Why darlings, a girl needs a boy on each arm, or she looks lopsided."

"Don't see why grown girls have to play ring around the rosey."

Key Club, an international organization of sophomore, junior, and senior boys, is devoted to developing leadership and rendering service to the school and community. During the year they met every first and third Monday of every month and attended regular Kiwanis' meetings. This year the Key Club organized a boys' Pep Club, sold candy, played inter-club basketball, sponsored a food drive for needy families at Christmas, and kept the bulletin board in the Commons up-to-date.

Sophomore, junior, and senior boys who were interested in promoting Christian beliefs among students made up this year's Hi-Y. They started the year by holding a hayride in October. As in past years the boys co-sponsored the semi-formal Hi-Y — Hi-Teens Dance at Christmas. They also hosted the dance after the last basketball game. The Hi-Y members had the winning float in the spirit contest which was held in February. In the spring the boys attended various churches as a group.

The Future Homemakers of America started the year by displaying their projects at the County Fair. Also during September ten FHA girls went to Springfield where they attended a subregional meeting. This year the girls held two bake sales for raising money. The FHA'ers worked during their lunch periods to collect money for Project Hope. The coat check at each home basketball game was managed by the girls. Throughout the year the girls had meetings the second Tuesday of every month in addition to two county meetings.

The FFA organization started the year by assisting the Junior Fair Board at the county fair. As a community service project the boys collected for CROP during their lunch periods. On the third Monday of every month the boys held their business meetings. As a money making project the FFA sponsored a scrap drive in the surrounding area. In March a banquet was held where the boys were presented with awards for their achievements. The awards they received this year included placing in the state land and wool judging contests and first and second place in the county Public Speaking contest.

Future Teachers of America met every third week to plan their activities. A guest speaker was present at each meeting. During the year, FTA members graded papers for assigned teachers and went to other schools to observe. Senior FTA acted as substitutes for teachers throughout the year. For the last basketball pep rally, FTA sponsored a spirit float. This year Upper Sandusky was the host for the Northwest District FTA Convention.

A little humor helps the job go faster as FTA members get ready for the basketball dance.

Throughout the year the Orange and Black Staff published the school's newspaper. Work began each Monday after school. At that time each person handed in the articles of the preceding week and in turn, was assigned a new article. On Tuesday the staff began making headlines, proofreading and typing the articles. By Wednesday the newspaper was in the hands of those at the Daily Chief Union for Saturday's newspaper.

Distributive Education is a program that teaches the basic aspects of business. Aside from daily classwork, D. E. students also have many activities they perform in the school and throughout the community. These activities this year included a booth at the fair, a bonfire, an United Fund collection, a dance following the game, a hayride, the distributing of candy canes among USHS students, a party for the children of the Angeline School, the selling of penants and the DECA activities in Frederickstown and Columbus.

One of the two groups that promote dramatic arts at USHS is Tri-Masque. It is open to any student in grades ten through twelve. The new members are required to study the Constitution, take a test, and present a skit to the old members. Together with the Thespians they had once a month meetings. A few of their activities included the valentine telegram sale, a talent show, and discussion groups which presented their monologues to public organizations. At the end of the year they had a drama banquet; at this time the drama awards were presented.

One of the fastest growing clubs in the past few years has been the Varsity U. This year's club contained 60 boys. In order to belong, a boy needed to earn a varsity letter in one of the following sports: football, basketball, baseball, track, wrestling, and golf. Among other things, they took a trip to The Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, held ropes during the halftimes of the basketball games, and provided help to needy families.

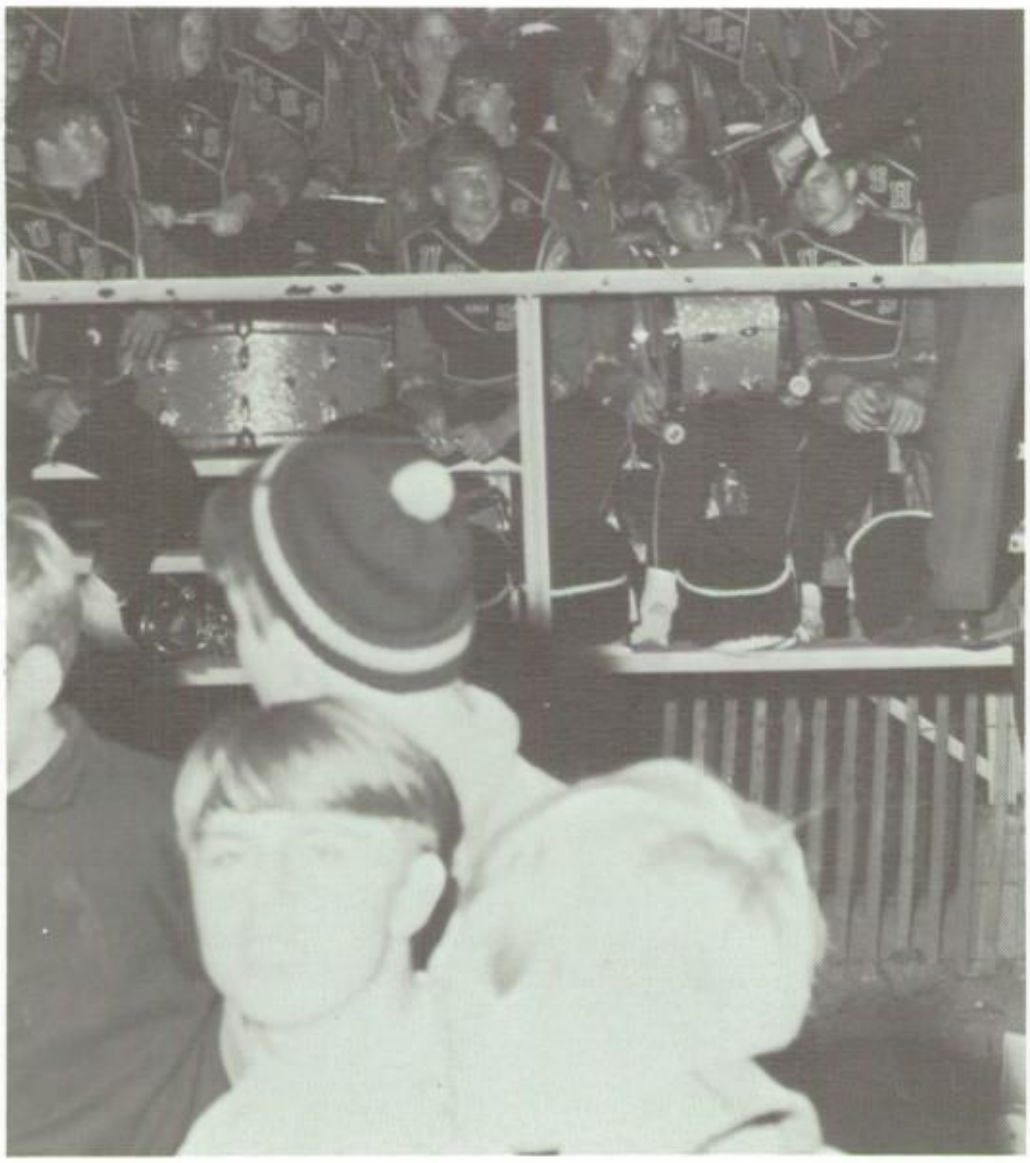
Marching Band Attracts Many Students

USHS Marching Band



The band's job lasts throughout the game.

The Marching Ram Band had a very good year under the direction of Mr. James McDonald. There were 120 members who practiced through rain or shine to put on their very best halftime shows at each game. The football season ended with band night when each senior member received a flower which the boys in turn presented to their mothers. The marching band also performed in their usual fine manner at the annual Halloween and Christmas parades. The members of this band practiced all day for one week prior to the starting of school to get ready to perform their marching techniques at the first football game of the school year. They also practiced many hours after school during football season to attain outstanding performances.

Juniors and seniors who had an interest in music and singing made up this year's Concert Choir. The Choir sang for various holiday assemblies. A concert was presented at Christmas and in the spring. In February the Concert Choir travelled to Maumee where they gave a combined concert with the Maumee High School Choir. Many of the parts for the Musical, "Bye, Bye, Birdie" were portrayed by members of the choir. Students who sang in the Upper Twenty, a small group that entertained for local functions, were chosen primarily from the Concert Choir.

Freshman Twenty

The Freshman chorus under the direction of Mr. Ehrman consisted of 76 members. During the year the students learned what will be expected of them in the next three years. Although they did not participate in as many events as the other choirs, they enjoyed singing together each day. This was the first year that a Freshman Twenty was formed, which consisted of the best voices of the Freshman chorus.

Bowling again this year enlisted more students than any other single sport at USHS. There were 150 regular bowlers who participated each week in addition to the substitutes who were always ready to fill in for a regular bowler. Mr. Ronald Clark, who was the adviser, helped the bowlers and scorekeepers each week, and kept everything running smoothly. Brian Getz, Bill Sturgeon, and Jerry Murphy, the league secretaries, kept all the bowling records and statistics for the year. At the annual bowling assembly awards and trophies were presented to the bowlers.
